

MUNICIPAL HOUSE, Náměstí Republiky 5, Prague 1

The Municipal House was constructed in Art-Nouveau style and decorated by eminent Czech artists. From its opening in 1912 it served as a centre for the representation of the Czech nation and its capital city. It fulfilled this role at key moments of Czech modern history: in 1918 served as place of the announcement of Czechoslovak independence and in 1989 discussions about take-over were held here.
