

ZBRASLAV CHATEAU

In 1292, Wenceslas II founded a Cistercian Monastery at the confluence of the Berounka and Vltava rivers, south of Prague. The monastery became the burial place of the last members of the Premyslid family. The chateau currently houses National Gallery collections.

Permanent exhibition: Asian art

