TOWN

www.slany.cz

Slaný with its almost 16 thousand inhabitants is situated about 34 km west of Prague.

The prehistoric origin of the town is connected with Slanska Hill, which was already settled at the Stone Age. A market settlement since the 9th century, after 1295, a precisely fortified royal town was founded. During the Hussite period, Slany, together with the towns of Louny and Žatec, established an independent town union. The 16th century prosperity came to an end in 1638 when Slany, due to the participation in an artisan revolt, became a vassal town of the Smečno estate. A free town status reestablished in 1794 and, in 1850, the town became a seat of the district executive office.
